Abstract. In 2001 a project named Mekong Malaria Documentation Center (MMDC) was established in Vietnam to support the information needs of malaria professionals in the Mekong Region. In 2005, MMDC was renamed and reorganized into a new database called ACTMalaria Information Resource Center (AIRC). AIRC's goal is to gather all published and unpublished materials, including electronic files, regarding malaria from ACTMalaria member countries. Today, there are eleven member nations. More than 1,500 files have been uploaded and are available for access. Various areas of AIRC still need to be developed, including editing, approvals of files, coordination with publishers, copyright issues, and the architecture of the database. Funding also needs to be secured for the sustainability of AIRC.

INTRO

The development of a database for the Mekong region was conceived in 2001 by the Mekong Malaria Documentation Center (MMD) under the leadership of Dr Urbani. The Mekong Malaria Documentation Center (MMD) was established between the ECMM and the WHO which provide electronic and digital malaria information. The MMD serves malaria professionals in the Mekong region of Thailand, Lao PDR, Cambodia, and communication professionals which have contributed to the success of Dr Urbani (Yap, J.M.).

Dear Mr. Yap:

I write to you in regards to manuscript # LIS-19-0117, "The Role of Libraries in Achieving Sustainable Development Goal 5 in the Library Agenda" in the Journal of Librarianship & Information Science.

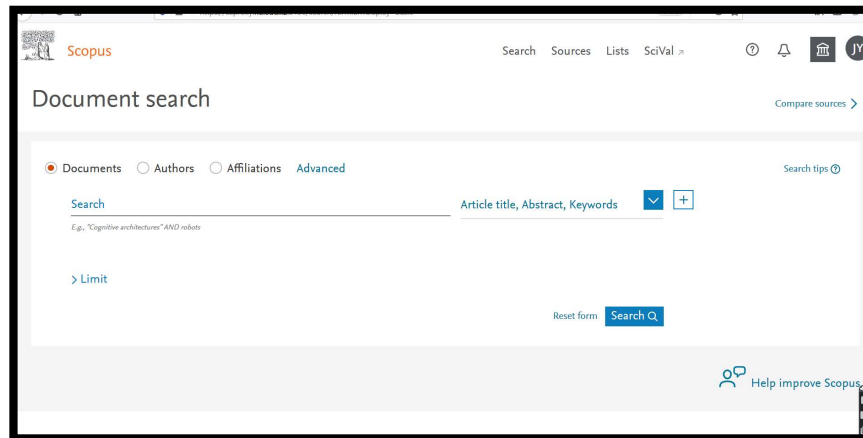

Thank you for your submission for publication in the Journal of Librarianship & Information Science. While we appreciate your work, we have decided not to publish your paper. We encourage you to revise your paper appropriately including how the findings and discussion contribute to the field of library and information science. Please include a new paragraph in your paper to link with previous studies on the topic and contribute to the discipline. In addition, for publication in JOLIS, you need to discuss the implications of your research for the field of library and information science and for library or information service practice more generally; your abstract should be a separate paragraph only.

Thank you for your submission to the Journal of Librarianship & Information Science for the publication of your research. I am sorry to disappoint you. The outcome of this specific submission will not discourage you from the submission of future manuscripts.

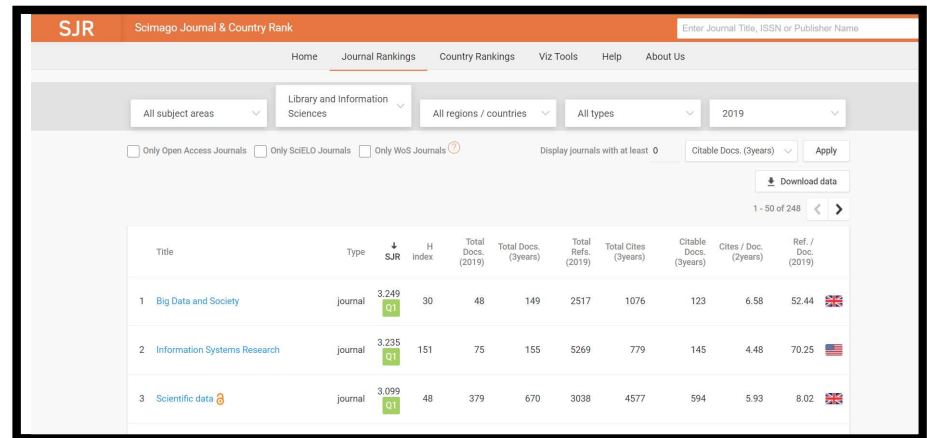

Sincerely,
Editor in Chief, Journal of Librarianship & Information Science

Where to Find LIS Conferences?

The screenshot shows the IFLA mailing lists page. The browser address bar displays 'ifla.org/mailling-lists'. The page features a navigation menu with categories like 'About IFLA', 'Membership', 'Activities and Groups', 'Supporters', 'News and Events', 'Publications', 'Standards', 'Annual Conference', and 'Global Vision'. The 'Annual Conference' link is highlighted. A breadcrumb trail indicates the current location: 'Home » News and Events » Mailing Lists'. The main content area is titled 'Mailing Lists' and includes language options: 'Español | français | Deutsch'. The text describes the general discussion list for the international library and information community as 'IFLA-L'. It also mentions that IFLA-L facilitates over 100 mailing lists for various sections and activities, sorted alphabetically by name. A 'See also' section lists links for 'Creating new mailing lists' and 'Disclaimer and Terms of Use'. The 'ACQUIS-L' section is described as the 'Acquisitions & Collection Development Section Standing Committee mailing list', with submission and administrative contact information provided. A note specifies that ACQUIS-L is a closed list for subscribers.

COACHING VS MENTORING

Encourage Novice Librarians to Embrace Research as Part of Their Professional Practice

My transfer to DLSU was rewarding for me. DLSU hones its librarians so they become the best they can, and it is regarded as one of the top libraries in the country. In 2003, DLSU received the Outstanding Library of the Year award given by the Philippine Association of Academic and Research Librarians (Awards 2006). At DLSU, librarians may enjoy the following faculty development programs (De La Salle University 2012):

- Support for paper presentations in local and international conferences
- Support for participation in local conferences
- Support for graduate studies
- Support for advanced short-term courses
- Support for local trainings, seminars, and workshops
- Support for membership in professional associations

The Faculty Resource and Development program would also provide us with a lot of leave time: vacation leave, sick leave, emergency leave, and service leave. Moreover, DLSU's Office of the Vice Chancellor for Research and Innovation supports the following:

- Incentive program for ISI- and Scopus-indexed journal publications
- Research incentives
- Support for funding of registration fees in international conferences

DLSU also encourages its librarians to be officers in professional library associations. One should continue to further one's professional education by attending relevant professional trainings. This is what I like most about
